Moments of silence is one of the three exhibitions of the Imperial war museum on the theme of the First World war, of the "Making a New world" Season exhibitions at the Imperial War museum of London marking the 100 years anniversary of the end of the war. Moments of Silence is about the remembrance ritual. A great question is asked, what can be heard in silence?

SEO :

Furthermore, in a world where we are surrounded by fake news the Theory of Gatekeeping explain to us a major role of journalist. Journalists decides what information should move to the audience and what information should not, depending on sources, reliability and contain. Clay Shirky, an adjunct professor at New York University, said according to we media, " the order of things in broadcast is 'filter, then publish'. The order of thing in communities is 'publish, then filter' "
