Black Cab Protest on London Bridge

Cab protest, as seen from Monument station. Image via mightymarnski/Twitter

Five consecutive days of non-stop traffic jams on London Bridge is 'extremely annoying' for those who commute via the bridge, like sales assistant Megan Wingfield, who lives near Borough Station and uses the number 48 bus to get to her workplace in Liverpool Street. She said that it's not that she can 'understand the cab drivers frustration' at feeling like their voices aren't being heard, but it is 'extremely childish that they aren't considering the impact their daily protests are having on London's emergency services'.
