ABOUT
Edit

A little bit about me..

My name is Kristina but my friends call me Kika. I am from Slovakia, a small country in the heart of Europe (definitely worth visiting).

I am just starting my first year as a journalism student at London South Bank University. Since English is not my first language it might be a bit difficult for me, but I am not giving up. I am going to use this website as my portfolio and post all my university work on here.

In my first year I am learning how to write news stories properly and I write one every week. The news stories come from my patch which is the red one on the map.
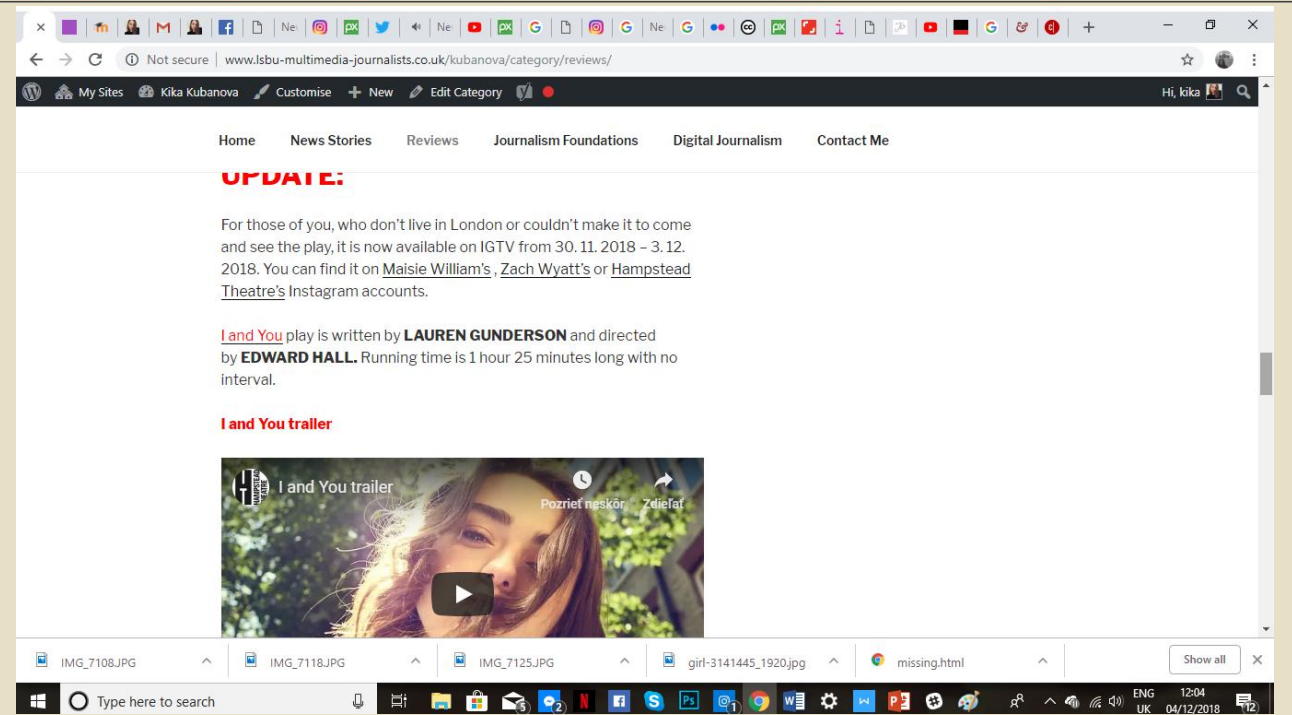

As you can see in this review, I am using many hyperlinks , to make my site sticky.

Also, all the pictures in this review are mine.

And I also embedded a video from YouTube.

It is really important to have a 'CONTACT' page. On my contact page I have put images that are hyperlinked to my professional Twitter account, personal Instagram account or you can contact via email.

I connected my professional Twitter account to my website, so you can see my latest tweets and even follow me on Twitter. From my point of view, Twitter is the best for journalist to share or collect information.

making it for you impossible to even get through, kind of ruins everything. I'd suggest to head down during the weekdays in the evenings.

LAST TWEETS

Check out my review on 'I and You' play which you sadly cannot go and see anymore at Hampstead Theatre, but from 30. 11. 2018 till 3. 12. 2018 is available for Instagram users on IGTV. https://t.co/pEPXngOtyZ #iandyou #iandyouplay #maisiewilliams #gameofthrones #hampsteadtheatre, Dec 1

RT @SkyNewsBreak: The Bank of England has warned the pound would crash, inflation will soar and interest rates would have to rise in the event of a 'no-deal' disorderly Brexit, Nov 28

RT @theresa_may: Today we see what really lies behind Labour's approach to Brexit. They want to cause chaos, frustrate Brexit and overturn the will of the British people. That would be a betrayal of the many by
